ISSN (Online) 2395-2717

International Journal of Engineering Research in Electrical and Electronic Engineering (IJEREEE)

Volume 13, Issue 02, February 2026

Mountain Hunting

[1] Umesh kumar

[1] Assistant Professor, Mathematics
Email ID: [1] uk9545505rrr@gmail.com

Abstract*— Mountain hunting is a rigours adventure that brings us against the rough realities of high altitude terrains. The article/text in this section emphasized on Mountain hunting in middle and modern era.

Index Terms*— Mountain hunting, terrains, rugged landscapes, middle ages.

I. INTRODUCTION

The stones are known as the first age of hunting was a pivotal period in human evolution and survival. The rugged landscapes mountains were abundant with species such as deer, ibex and bears providing valuable food and material resources for early humans.

As ancient civilization started to rise around the world Mountain hunting received have cultural and spiritual significances. The middle ages witnessed Mountain hunting transform into a favored pastime of the European elite specifically royalty and nobility. The unforgiving terrains of the alps Pyreness and Carpathian mountains were often choosen as sites for grand hunting expectations. In Modern Era, Mountain hunting is seen as an adventure. Hunters use advanced equipment such as high tech optics, GPS for navigations and specialized clothing to deal with the rugged mountain conditions.

Navigating the rugged terrains and unpredictable weather pattern of mountainous regions is a unique challenging hunting.

The plant and animal life in mountainous region varies dramatically based on elevations aspects and climates. Mountainous regions are characterized by a variety of biomes from alpine meadows to rocky crags each with its unique flora fauna and weather patterns.

II. CONCLUSIONS

This texts/articles stresses on ancient civilizations and mountain hunting in some ages like midern and middle ages.

REFERENCES

[1] Posewitz, J. (1994), “Beyond fair chase: The ethics and traditions of hunting”, Globe Peqaot Press, P.57, ISBN: 978-1-56044-0-283-7.